- * Amounts available range from $15,000 - $10 million
- * Delivery and installation can be included in the Lease
- * Business owners with challenged credit may qualify
- * Start up businesses can qualify
- * Could avoid adding partners who will always request a large share of the profits
- * Flexible terms from 3 to 5 years
- * Custom designed payment structures to fit your needs may be available
- * Quick turnaround time, sometimes within a week, assuming all required documentation has been timely submitted

Other Features

- * Preserves your existing bank lines of credit
- * Retains the continued availability of existing cash flow for regular business operations
- * Buy out options or renewal options are available at the end of the lease term
- * Convenience of master leases allows for additions or upgrading of machinery or equipment under similar terms

Additional Comments on Equipment Leasing

If you are planning to acquire new or used equipment to be used in your business, or if you are planning on upgrading your existing equipment, a lease may well be the solution. Using long term financing to acquire capital assets allows you to use your available cash or bank financing to manage the day to day needs of your business.

If you already have an existing line of credit, use it for working capital purposes – DO NOT USE IT to buy long-term assets. Match your costs to the benefits!

According to industry research, approximately 80% of U.S. companies lease some or all of their equipment.
